COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

Saturday the assessors will be visiting various places in town to review assessments and inspect new property. Mr. Gagnon, who has worked for the town for several years will accompany them.

There have been some changes in the laws pertaining to tax assessments since last year. The one that will affect the most people is that television sets are now exempt from taxation, also musical instruments. Cattle under 24 months of age are now exempt.

Anyone who serves food to the public should note that his victuals license expires the first of May. The licensing board, which consists of the board of selectmen will be in session the first Monday of May to review applications.

The selectmen will continue to meet each second and fourth Monday night of each month. A taxpayer who wishes to discuss taxes with them would usually find more time could be devoted to their problem if a call was made to the office prior to the meeting in order that they could be reserved for them.

WINTERS STORMS DEALT MAINE SHADE TREES A BLOW

Old Man Winter didn't produce much snow last winter but it still dealt a staggering blow to private and public shade trees. Early winter hurricane force winds following on the heels of heavy rain and icing conditions ripped through tree crowns causing hundreds of thousands of dollars damage.

Mangled trees with broken branches and split trunks can be found in nearly every central and coastal community where the brunt of the storms was felt according to John Chadwick, Maine Forestry Department Shade Tree Specialist. He said the full effects of these devastating winter storms were not yet realized but that municipal shade tree programs received a serious setback.

Chadwick urged all municipal officials to survey and take inventory of their shade tree conditions now while the damage is not obscured by foliage. He pointed out the potential physical hazards to life and property from hanging branches and that injured tree parts were a source for insect and disease breeding.

The State Forestry Department recognizes the increased financial burden on communities to repair the storm damaged trees but strongly encourages all towns and cities to preserve this valuable natural resource. Towns that have Dutch elm disease control programs can obtain some relief from this financial burden under the State Municipal Cooperative Program. Property owners having questions on eligibility for financial assistance should contact their municipal officials.

The State Forestry Department in Augusta has an informative booklet on the "Planting and Care of Shade Trees" which is available upon request.

SMALL BUSINESS LOANS AVAILABLE IN OXFORD COUNTY

Funds for Economic Opportunity loans for small businesses have just been released according to Elwyn R. Morrow, Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor for Oxford County.

These loans can open up many new opportunities for families to improve their incomes and achieve at least a modest increase in their level of living.

Morrow states these loan funds can be used to finance farm and non farm business for such projects as farming, logging operations, small stores, repair shops, wood working mills, barber shops and other small businesses which have a gross income of less than $20,000.

Many of these loans were made several years ago that proved to be quite successful.

Anyone interested in this program may contact the Farmers Home Administration office at the Masonic Building in South Paris.

ERRORS IN FISHING LAW BOOKS

Open water fishing law booklets are being mailed to license agents around the state and should be available soon for anglers buying licenses.

Two errors appear in the law booklets. First the minimum length of landlocked salmon in Sebago Lake is 13 inches rather than 14 inches as the booklet says.

The second error refers to the bag limit on white perch in Kennebec and Somerset counties and to Boyd Lake in Piscataquis County. The bag limit has been removed on all these waters although the information in the booklet indicates otherwise.

S. A. D. 44 DIRECTORS APPROVE POLICIES—RECEIVE COMMITTEE REPORTS AT MONDAY SESSION

In a meeting at Telstar Regional High School on Monday evening of this week the board of directors of Maine School Administrative District 44 gave final approval for two pending policies that were granted preliminary approval March 6, and heard reports of various sub-committees of the board, Keith Cunningham, Telstar principal, gave a brief outline of plans for the school for the 1970-71 year.

The directors gave final approval to an amended policy regarding use of school property by non-school groups. As approved by the board the policy now is as follows (amendment is in dark face type):

Use of School Property: §1. The use of school property by community groups for worthwhile purposes shall be permitted and encouraged, when such use will not interfere with the school program or the activities of school-sponsored organizations. §1.1 Approval of Use. The Superintendent is authorized to approve and schedule the use of school facilities by non-school groups, except that no use shall be for commercial gain or personal benefit unless approved by the Board of Directors. §1.2 Regulations. The Superintendent shall establish such regulations and procedures as will insure protection and maintenance of school property, and all such use must be without additional cost to the District.

The board gave final approval to the following policy regarding the reappointment of the district's directors: "Reappointment - If at any time, the percentage of any town's assessment to the School District changes by 10%, the number of Directors represented by each town shall be reviewed at the request of any member of the Board of Directors. The number of Directors represented by each town should reflect the direct assessment of each town at the time of review." Citing recent U. S. Supreme Court decisions stating that school boards should be elected on a "one-man one-vote" basis, Bethel Director Dale Thurston requested that his name be recorded as being opposed to the policy.

Robert Davis, Newry, transportation committee chairman, reported that his committee had authorized the purchase of a used 1966 bus, as well as discussing the possible future purchase of a four-wheel drive vehicle and a 16-24 passenger bus. The four-wheel drive vehicle would be used for pupil transportation and a service vehicle, and the 16-24 passenger bus for small group activities.

Eddie Snyder of Andover, reporting for the negotiating committee, stated that several meetings had been held with non-teaching personnel. The board voted that any agreements reached with the non-teaching personnel would go into effect as soon as they are ratified by the entire board.

Milton Mills, Woodstock, building committee chairman, reported that an estimated $35,000 is available to complete various items at Telstar. He stated that the building committee had drawn up the following tentative budget for these funds: complete baseball field, $500; baseball backstop, $250; shelving for music room storage, $400; stage speaker system $200, complete stage lighting, $1,500; landscape around building and detaching of lower athletic field, $3,000; parking area.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —
There were two rare dazzling days and I was out early to enjoy the sun. How fresh it was! The sky was as blue as a sky flower. The sun crawled slowly up the sky.

The red wing blackbirds, back from the southland and swinging on the bushes, were uttering their liquid gurgle, mad with delight of the sun and the season.

I loitered along the wood roads, crossed the walls and took the steep way up the slopes.

It was a wide world under this big blue sky and gave an alluring hint of the vast wilderness beyond.

Looming over the wooded distance were the rugged barren tops of Saddleback and other mountains. At times they seemed to blend with the sky.

The pine grovebeaks were swinging happily in one graceful old birch tree; their yellow and red lighted by the sun; interested in what they were doing and unafraid of me.

No sign of tracks now on the hard surface. It was as though all these little creatures had withdrawn beyond the hills just to allow me to pass silently and alone down into their land.

But I had to leave this highland and skyland with all its glory because the sun was climbing higher and higher and would soon soften the crust under its rays. It wasn't as solid as that on which I traveled Tuesday afternoon and really encountered a surprise.

I set out through the thick growth above the ledges opposite the ponds. The crust was strong, even above the side hill brooks that bubbled and sang.

Here I was sauntering leisurely from ridge to ridge the better to see the rocks, mosses and ferns when I noticed a log; an ideal place to sit and listen. Immediately in the distance I heard the busy hammering of a woodpecker so I moved on to see what kind. High on an old tree, driving nails, at least it sounded that way. I spotted a bright red tuft atop a head and an enormous body; so it seemed to me. Every now and then he dislodged pieces of bark. He surely was busy and noisy! I crept nearer and recognized him. I thought, as the Pileated Woodpecker. Now he discovered me and winged away making his peculiar call from a distance. More heavy tapping, so I followed. This was a happy kind of detective work. Again I found him: working, a monument of passive endurance. I watched and was excited for this was my first glimpse of a Pileated Woodpecker as I had heard them called.

This time he made a few short flights from side to side of a tree, opening and I could readily see his colors. He looked so white under death as he flew.

He, like many birds under similar circumstances fancied himself pursued and became suspiciously uneasy. He called again his startling cry and was gone.

Arriving home I found him pictured in my book and was truly glad I had chosen that way for my afternoon hike.

Fay and Ann Holt and Colista Morgan were in Lewiston on Wednesday.

Ardell, Glenn, and Danna Hayes and families were at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hayes on Saturday.

Mrs. Nancy Hutton, a college friend of Ann Holt, visited her on Saturday.

Mrs. Leonas Holt, Ann Holt and Mrs. Clyde Morgan visited Mrs. Ruth Hastings at South Paris one evening this week and viewed slides.

Ann Holt was a recent caller at Marcia Benson's West Paris.

UPTON

— Mrs. Arline Bernier, Corres. —
They say in Quebec, "When Spring comes, winter can't be far behind." Spring was more than two weeks advanced when winter came pushing through the cracks, howling down the chimney, rattling loose boards and piling up on the highway.

The schools of Errol and the Upper Settlements are holding their annual spring festival Thursday, April 9. It promises to be better than ever because several of the children have been learning to play musical instruments for a band and a guitar folk music group.

The census taker, a gentleman from Rumford, has been in this area for several days.

Wednesday, the conversation on the school bus was mostly—"There's a mouse, April Fool!" "Lookit the moose! April Fool!" "I didn't look, so he's hot!" "There's a worm on you, April Fool!" About half way I called out "See the deer. Three of them!"—No one looked so I alone enjoyed the sight of them leaping and running off through the trees. The children never did believe they April-fooled themselves by not looking.

Fred and Bea Juddins celebrated her birthday Sunday evening by going to Jordan's Restaurant, Locke Mills, for supper and visiting relatives. Her birthday was Friday but the weather was inclement.

The Charro families were in town over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck, Alden and Dennis, of Buckfield called on Earl Buck's family Sunday, bringing gifts for Alfred Buck, who was seven years old April 8th.

The Charro and Sally Buck took Magel Goodrum and son to Berlin Saturday to see her mother. Magel plans to go from there to Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cloutier of Berlin were at their camp over the week end.

Helen Abbott is going to Boston with friends from Magalloway to see her husband.

Earl and Lucille Largesse and family are staying in Berlin a few days to visit her parents and other relatives.

One day I was doing a bit of cleaning while Father sat out the storm on a stool with his back to the stove. I found some small guards, several of which had started to mold or spoil—I put those in the stove and a few minutes later there was an explosion. Roland asked what I put in the stove. A battery?—a bulb? Well, what? While I told him and we discussed it, there were several other pops. A few minutes later, he settled in an armchair and I took his place to sort over some papers.

An extra loud explosion which must have been 2 or 3 at once, landed me back in my corner and brought him instantly home from the ranch where he'd been rustling cattle or rescuing pretty girls from between the covers of a pocket book.

Fred has been doing extensive cleaning and painting in his store.

"The French Lieutenant's Woman," by John Fowles. The scene is the village of Lyme Regis on Dorset's Lyme Bay. "The largest bite taken the underside of England's outermost southwestern leg." The main characters in the love intrigue triangle are Charles Smithson, this-ty hero, a gentleman of independent means and vaguely scientific bent;

his fiancée, Ernestine Freeman, a pretty heiress, daughter of a wealthy and pompous dry goods merchant;

and Sarah Woodruff, mysterious and fascinating. Obsessed with an irrationable fascination for the enigmatic

Sarah, Charles is hurried by a moment of unexplained lust to the brink of the existential void. Duty dictates that his engagement to Tim-must be broken as he goes forth once again to seek the woman who has captured his Victorian soul and gentleman's heart.
